PITCHER MADE HOME RUN TODAY

But Johnnie Made it When Accompanied by the Silver Star and Brass Buttons.

IMPLICATED IN THEFT CASE

Rushville Lad Arrested by Shelbyville Officers—Three of Them Were There.

City Marshal Price went to Shelbyville today and brought back Johnnie Pitcher, who was arrested there at the instigation of the officials in that city. Pitcher is wanted for having a hand in the theft of brass from an old saw mill engine near Carthage last week. When he was placed in jail he stoutly maintained that he was innocent. He admits being with the other lads but says he had no hand in the stealing.

The Shelbyville News had the following account of Pitcher's arrest there:

"Shelbyville reciprocated the favor Rushville gave Sunday in the identification of A. S. Johnson by Mrs. Hatfield, in the arrest, Monday midnight, of Johnnie Pitcher by Police-man George Glass. Pitcher is wanted in Rushville for the theft of brass from an old engine. Seven boys are implicated, three being under arrest, in Rushville. The brass stolen according to Pitcher, was worth less than one dollar.

"Pitcher has been in hiding in Shelbyville since last Wednesday. Until last Sunday, Elsie Beeler, also wanted for larceny, was with him.

"Pitcher could give the officers no clew that would lead to his apprehension. He said when he left Beeler he said he was going either to Indianapolis or Greensburg. Eddie Taylor, who has relatives in Shelbyville, is also on the missing list. The officers were hunting for him at the hour of going to press, having little hope, however, of effecting his capture.

"Pitcher, until five years ago, lived in Shelbyville and bears an extensive acquaintance here. His mother died when he was one year old and his course has been storm tossed since."

WHEAT OUTLOOK NOT FLATTERING

The Acreage is Small and Yield Will Not Measure up Fifteen Bushels.

PRACTICALLY ALL SHOCKED

The wheat in this county is practically all in the shock. Occasionally fields or parts of fields are still standing and in them the machines are busily going today, but the large number of farmers who are in the city this afternoon is of itself an unmistakable sign that nearly all the grain is cut.

The consensus of opinion expressed by a number of observant proprietors of farms leads to the conclusion, or rather to the guess, that the average yield in this county will not exceed fifteen bushels per acre. In some localities the yield may greatly exceed this.

There remains but two black spots on the map of Rushville—those on the levee. But with them gone many contend that we will have dark days commercially.

STILL REMAINS IN JAIL

Rex Seward, One of the Junk Purloiners, Occupies a Cell.

Rex Seward, a young man living in West Second street who was arrested for complicity in the Carthage theft of brass junk from an old saw mill, still remains in jail. The others, whom "Monk" Pea implicated, will be arrested as soon as they return from a jaunt in the surrounding cities.

DIVORCE GRANTED IN A FEW MINUTES

Frank Bender's Wife Wanted $1000 Alimony, But Only Got $50, Costs of Case.

BENDER WAS ON THE STAND

Mrs. Fannie A. Bender of Knightstown appeared before Judge Jackson Monday morning, says the New Castle Courier, and told a story of long abuse, etc., at the hands of her husband, Frank D. Bender, now located at Rushville, who left her three years ago. Mrs. Bender is a decidedly attractive woman and prayed for $1000 alimony and $25 per month for the support of her nineteen-year-old daughter. The court, however, saw fit to grant her but $50 alimony. No provision was made for the daughter, who is teaching school. The case was disposed of in twenty minutes.

Bender was on the stand and explained his action by asserting that his wife nagged at him until he could stand it no longer and left. He was a tailor at Knightstown and is now employed at Rushville.

RIGHT SPIRIT IS DISPLAYED THERE

Hustling Little Town of Andersonville Erects a Band Stand For Concerts.

PLAY SATURDAY AND SUNDAY

Another scheme looking to the betterment of our hustling little city inaugurated by The Herald, is about to be consummated, says the Andersonville Four County Herald. Our readers will remember that some weeks ago we started a movement for the building of a band stand over the town well and asked all liberal minded citizens to help in the enterprise.

The movement rapidly gained in favor and about a week ago some of the members of the band started out soliciting to see how much could be raised. They met with phenomenal success, five Rushville firms contributed $25 with the understanding that each is to have an advertisement upon the face of the building.

The band will give us Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon concerts and will call many people to town. If you have not contributed to this worthy enterprise, call upon Cliff Mitchell and do so. You are certainly interested in the band if not in the improvement of our village.

THE WEATHER

Generally fair tonight and Wednesday; not much change in temperature.

SILKEN PURSES AND SWINE EARS

As of Old, it's Still Impossible to Make the Former Out of the Latter.

SAD CONDITION EXISTS HERE

Small Coterie of Men Are Opposed to Anything and Everything—The Remedy.

"Just for spite," some of those who so bitterly fought against the improvement of Main street now declare they favor bricking Main street by having the abutting property holders pay for same. Hurrah for them! Let us put up a big, white chalk mark for them; for it is the first time in the history of Rushville that some of them ever favored anything—to say nothing of an improvement.

The members of a prominent law firm said today that this talk about a compromise and having the city and township go in partnership with property owners on a deal to pave part of the right of way with brick and the remainder with macadam is all bosh, impractical and impossible. So much for that!

There are some here who have taken the street improvement too much to heart and magnified its importance by superfluous sidewalk debates and winded speeches. If some of these poor unfortunates, who were opposed to the idea, could see themselves as others see them as they walk about gloating over Judge Hanna's decision, it would turn their stomachs. True gentlemen, when bested or winners in a matter, even though they still maintain a certain position on a question, will not go about making silly asses of themselves. But there is a small coterie here—maybe half dozen or more—who have made some money and saved it. In nearly every instance it was a case of "self defense," that of making money. It was not because they were smarter or shrewder or wiser than many others, but they just couldn't help it. And instead of being a help to the community where they reside, they have always been a pest and a hindrance—the barnacles of our city fair. But the worst part of it all, because they have amassed a little fortune, they ignorantly think it puts them in the sage class and that people look upon them as wise acres. Just the contrary. Most of them are so wholly engrossed in making a few more paltry dollars that they have little time for reading or looking into matters that would improve their intellectual store house. Therefore, their ignorance is blissful. This condition is a grave matter. They are almost impregnable and we cannot reach them. It is doubtful if many or any of them will read this. So you see, there is little hope. If we could impress upon them the true state of affairs how much better off they would be and how the city would thrive. If we could tell them the truth—how people stand about and laugh at them, and when not laughing at them, were pitying them. Indeed, they are to be pitied. They do not enjoy what the good Lord has sent them and never will. And they suffer every time they see any other mortal having any enjoyment. What a terrible existence they must lead. Pessimistic are they for all that the word implies. They cannot see good in anything or anybody. Their god is money and constantly they burn incense at the altar of Mammon.

Some of them might be likened unto a crow that flies around through God's beautiful domain all the day and then comes into the city at nightfall to vomit forth vilifications

MADE HUNDREDS OF ASCENSIONS

Local Aeronaut Still Dreams of Constructing Something New in Aviator World.

HAS MADE A DIRIGIBLE MODEL

John Innis, Who Has Been in the Clouds Many Times, Recounts His Experience.

Probably no one in Rushville, or the State, for that matter, follows the accounts of the balloon stories and the news in the aviator world any closer than John Innis, of this city. While Innis was one of the pioneers in the balloon business in this country, still he is comparatively a young man, and at least young and spirited in enthusiasm. Innis has made 223 balloon ascensions and parachute drops, three ascensions in gas balloons and five ascensions in the old hot air type of balloons, going up at night without a parachute and handle dangerously explosive fireworks in midair. He is of the reckless and daring school, consequently his experiences are most interesting. He has flirted with and courted death on many occasions, but has come out, after all his dare-devil escapades and adventures, with nothing more than a broken ankle.

Innis was with the balloon corps in the United States army, but the discipline did not set well with his temperament. And how could one expect an aeronaut venturesome enough to fly to the skies, to be one whose temperament would stand for the bending of a servile knee or hearkening to the clap-trap of army orders? That would be a paradoxical nature.

Can you picture the man who has thrilled the hearts of thousands crawling around on a floor with a paint brush in his hand daubing away for dear life for two dollars per? Well, that's Innis, anyway. At present he is employed at the painter's trade in the home of Mrs. Sarah Guffin, in North Morgan street. But he likes to paint—and he likes to fly.

The wind or gale was never too strong or the day too stormy to keep John Innis out of the air when he was in the business. If the truth was known, he fairly reveled and took a keen delight in sailing toward the sun when old Sol's face was hidden behind dark clouds and the elements were flaring out their damnable threats.

Does he intend to give up the business? Well, you should have seen him smile when that question was put to him. Does a mother cease to love her first-born? An answer to this last question is quite applicable to the first. No, John Innis still has day dreams of accomplishing things out of the ordinary in aerial navigation. Since his return to Rushville—over a year ago—he has been diligently at work on a new scheme in dirigible ballooning. When the larder is filled at home on Saturday night and the current bills paid out of the painter's meagre salary, if any change remains, it is invested in material for the equipment of a model dirigible balloon he has had under construction. Three cigar-shaped bags will be used, hitched as it were, like three horses to the apparatus he has planned to use below; a frame work with a propeller, rudder and other equipment fore and aft. An Eastern capitalist has been in communication with Innis, and if the Rushville aeronaut develops anything new—and he sincerely hopes and believes he will—the scheme will be at once fully and faithfully financed.

Innis' folks always did object to him being in the balloon business, as the calling takes him away from home. And as a result of their objection he has had a difficult job on hands to work out his plans for they threaten to destroy his models—and did some of them—and have used his balloon material (some special make of cloth he had a local merchant secure for him) converting it into "domestic articles" such as toweling, dish rags and the like.

No matter what anyone says to the contrary one could travel many States and not find a man with a more charming personality than John Innis. He is an excellent conversationalist and employs the choicest language. It is really a treat to catch him in a reminiscent mood and hear him recount some of the stories of his adventures. His manner of delivery is as pleasing and easy and charming as a kindly old grandfather.

Seems rather odd, but the most unfortunate accident he ever had was while he was engaged in house painting. He fell while at work on the general offices of the I. & C. traction company and suffered a broken ankle. The injury gave him much pain and he was obliged to carry crutches for a long time. It was while he was hobbling around Rushville at that time—and he had, for the sake of his family, foreswore ballooning forever—that an offer came from Middletown to make three ascensions there. He needed the money, and accepting the offer was largely a case of "self defense." Innis went to Middletown, made the three trips to the clouds successfully and while enroute home stopped at Knightstown. It was Saturday and the merchants asked him if he would make an ascension late that afternoon for fifty dollars. His ankle was not improving and on advice of a local physician he had contemplated going to Cincinnati to have a specialist right the limb. He was to have it broken over again and reset. This called for at least four weeks in the private sanitarium of the surgeon and an expenditure of over one hundred dollars. Such were the conditions confronting him when the Knightstown merchants made him the offer. It was tempting under the circumstances and he readily agreed. While he had a harrowing experience in his descent and sustained an injury, still he says it was the luckiest ascension he ever made. In descending he alighted on a high barn and then pitched forward and fell to the ground. When picked up in an unconscious condition it was found that his ankle had been broken. It was the ankle for which he made the ascension—the one he had hoped to have treated with the money he received. A Knightstown surgeon set the bone and had him taken to Rushville in a cab. Innis said it saved him the Cincinnati trip. The ankle became as new again and all it cost him was two dollars and a half, the Knightstown doctor's fee.

Innis has made ascensions in nearly every State in the Union and in Cuba, but it remained for him to have his most memorable flight and hair raising experience above Rush county soil, his native sod. It was in 1896 at Manila when Congress-

CAUGHT DOG VICTIM HERE

Connorsville Constable Arrested Emery Kennedy Here Saturday.

Those who have given shelter, food and the like to dogs on which they have paid no tax are reaping as they have sown just now, says the Connorsville News. Emery Kennedy, against whom an affidavit charging the harboring of an untaxed canine, was filed late in June, was arrested by Constable Henry Osborne at Rushville Saturday afternoon. He pleaded guilty and paid his fine and costs, amounting to $12.95. This sum would have paid the tax on the dog for more years than it is likely to live.

LAST OF TALE OF COW'S TAIL

Milt Perry's Dash For the Milky Way Proves Quite Disastrous.

TIED COWS TAIL TO TREE

Flies Were Bothering and Cow Kept Swishing Her Tail in His Face.

This is not a nature fake story, but an absolute fact as the neighbors will testify and the man himself will admit. The other night Milt Perry, who lives in West Ninth street, was milking a cow and the flies being so thick and having such a mean disposition on this particular night, the cow did swish her tail back and forth in a deadly duel with them, much to the discomfort of Perry. Three or four times did the tail strike him in the face until he became annoyed and righteously indignant. Perry hit off on a happy plan. He tied the cow's tail to a tree and proceeded with the milking. But, oh you flies! They stung that poor beast until she was fairly wild. When she could no longer stand it she gave a plunge forward; there was a sharp crack and Perry was astounded to look up and see her tail hanging to the tree. She had actually pulled it off. That was the last of the "tale."

WHAT HAS BECOME OF BIG CIRCUSES?

Only One Has "Showed Its Head" Since the Season Opened This Year.

OTHER CITIES ARE WONDERING

The big circuses that were wont to send hither their advance agents in other years ere the dandelions were in bloom have been distressingly scarce this year. And the strange thing is that the same is true of the larger cities in the gas belt. It would be interesting to know if all the big shows have formed a trust to limit the output and then put the entrance fee at a dollar, a dollar and a half or two dollars when the public grows hungry for the sight of the clown and the kangaroo-steer.

In some towns the one horse shows are reaping a harvest because the big ones are not showing up. Rushville has had but one of these and that will probably suffice for the season. If it can't get the best it will be content to go without any.

DESTINY OF COLLEGES.

To Bear Brunt of Struggle For World Peace, Says Dr. Butler.

"In another year, I believe, the great educational interests of the earth will have to bear the brunt of the struggle, if I may so term it, of international peace," said President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia university the other night in an address to the teachers of Omaha, Neb.

President Butler said that international commerce had in the past been depended upon to promote and preserve good feeling between the nations, but that the tendency under modern conditions of the struggle for commercial supremacy was toward a feeling of distrust and ill feeling. He said that the great educational institutions will head the peace movement and help cement the friendship of nations.

Indian Girl to Write American Play.

Emma Rainel, a full blooded Indian, has become possessed of the ambition to write "the great American play." She is a graduate of Carlisle and lives in Seattle. She intends to give all her time in the next two years to work on a play which she believes will be "American in the biggest sense." Miss Rainel thinks the "great American play" should have Indians and white settlers as principals, and she will swing the action around a mixed group of this kind. She has selected Seattle as her home because she thinks that in the far west only is to be found the spirit which animated the pioneers who pushed the country's frontier to the Pacific. She has arranged to visit Indian villages in the west of the United States and also in Canada in search of material or "atmosphere." Miss Rainel was graduated from Carlisle with high honors.

A Social Fad.

As a cure for nerves, society in Washington has taken up floor scrubbing.

The Old Fashioned Fourth of July.

The dawn of the Fourth—the old annual story—
The nervous man's dread and the small boy's glory!
The east is yet gray when all the land rumbles,
And the small cannon pops, and the big cannon grumbles,
And the torrid sun creeps through a blue haze of powder,
And the torpedoes snap, and the cannons boom louder

On the Fourth of July—
The old fashioned Fourth of July!

The small boy's abroad and his breakfast forgotten,
With his long stick of punk or his smoldering cotton,
And he touches off bombs and crackers and rockets,
And drops pinwheels in the policeman's pockets.

Old gentlemen swear, and old ladies mutter,
And the Chinaman peeps through his steel bolted shutter

On the Fourth of July—
The old fashioned Fourth of July!

The nervous may fume and sizzle with ire,
But the rocket will flare and spurt its red fire;
The police protest, and almost profanely,
And the papers may plead to spend the day sanely.

But remember the days when you were a tacker
And list to the boom of the big cannon cracker
On the Fourth of July—
The old fashioned Fourth of July!

PERU HAS NO FEAR OF WAR

Bolivia's Outburst Doesn't Excite Her Neighbor.

THOUGHT TO BE FLASH IN PAN

Peruvians Are Satisfied With the Boundary Award Made by President Alcora of the Argentine Republic, and Are Not Inclined to Take Seriously Bolivia's Violent Objection Thereto—On the Other Hand Argentina May Demand Satisfaction For Hostile Manifestations.

Buenos Ayres, July 13.—The council of ministers at a conference decided to telegraph the Argentine minister at LaPaz, Senor Fonseca, to withdraw from that country in case he is not able to obtain immediate and complete satisfaction with reference to the hostile manifestations against the Argentine republic.

Lima, Peru, July 13.—No fear is felt here that war will ensue between Peru and Bolivia on account of the hostile demonstrations at LaPaz since the decision given by President Alcora of the Argentine republic on the boundary limits of the two countries. Peru has been satisfied with the award and the attitude of Bolivia, which has protested against the decision of the arbitrator is unfavorably commented on. President Leguia addressed a large gathering of all classes of society, which took the form of a demonstration in front of the university, requesting the people to remain calm and to exercise prudence in the present trying circumstances. He asked them to have confidence in the government, which had taken all necessary steps to maintain the honor and dignity of Peru.

Up to the present there has not been a single hostile movement against Bolivia, and to avoid the possibility of exciting public feeling, the authorities declined to permit a public meeting which had been arranged for this evening. Police guards also have been placed at the Bolivian legation and consulate.

LaPaz in a State of Siege.

LaPaz, Bolivia, July 13.—A guard of 500 soldiers was stationed at the Peruvian and Argentine legations last evening and the troops prevented the mob from setting fire to the buildings. The greatest disorder prevails throughout the city. Many of the Peruvians' stores have been pillaged and the demonstration against both Peru and the Argentine republic are exceedingly violent. A state of siege has been proclaimed.

STOLEN THIRTY YEARS AGO

Penitent Returns $1 After Long Suffering From His Conscience.

Carmi, Ill., July 13.—A letter received by Judge Jacob Messmore of Perry county evidences the misery of a guilty conscience. In the letter the anonymous writer sets forth the fact that thirty years ago he stole $1 from a harness shop in which Messmore at that time was connected. The penitent inclosed the money and vowed that his conscience had continually nagged him for thirty years and that, as the prospect for relief was not visible, he determined to remit.

Unhappy Mother's Tragic Deed.

Fort Wayne, Ind., July 13.—Mrs. Ralph Bump, twenty-eight years old, living on a farm five miles southeast of Roanoke, forced a quantity of carbolic acid down the throat of her four-months-old baby and immediately afterward drank the remainder of the contents of the bottle herself. The child is dead and the mother is not expected to live. Mrs. Bump left a note stating that she was tired of living and could not go and leave the baby.

Tornado Struck Fithian.

Danville, Ill., July 13.—A tornado struck Fithian, near here, wrecked a number of stores, damaged a large elevator there, and also the sub-power station on the Illinois Traction system. Several persons were hurt, but their injuries were slight.

Aeroplane Did Well.

Washington, D. C., July 13.—Orville Wright last evening made a successful flight of six minutes and forty seconds in his aeroplane at Fort Myer. He encircled the drill grounds more than six times in a stiff wind and landed successfully.

Funeral Party in Tornado.

Hamilton, O., July 13.—A tornado swept over a part of Butler county. At one point seven miles from this city a funeral procession encountered the storm and twenty persons were more or less injured.

Will Cut It in Two.

Washington, July 13.—At a conference at the White House it was definitely decided that the rate to be levied under the new corporation tax shall be reduced from 2 per cent to 1 per cent.

A LAW FOR GYPSIES.
Several counties in Indiana rejoice in the discovery that there is a law on the State books, passed by the last general assembly, that can be invoked to drive out gypsies and wandering bands of horse traders, who heretofore have cri-crossed in every direction, camping where they will. Under this law there can be no camping on highways or on the adjacent ground with out the consent of the owners. A violation calls for $25 fine and thirty days in jail.

The reformers who advocated a "same and safe" Fourth of July are disposed to brag of the success of their efforts. It would be well not to encourage them, however, lest they go on from conquest to conquering and present the country with a turkey-less Thanksgiving and a giftless Christmas. This latter particularly, as it has already been under discussion and consideration.

Ain't your Uncle Sam the great old dead head? Asks your newspapers to publish post office unclaimed letter lists free, then follows up with a long array of places on the civil service list he would like to fill by examination methods. Then to prove his appreciation he prints already stamped envelopes almost for nothing and delivers them free of express and postage cost to customers in competition with we printers.—Warren, O., Daily Chronicle.

The population of the United States is cosmopolitan or rather this is a composite nation. Hence it is not surprising that "dry" conditions are different to compass in all the States and territories. Many immigrants bring to America recipes for the liquor with which they are most familiar in their native land, and so there is variety, without limit. It is said that more than six thousand intoxicating drinks can be concocted by a skillful bartender. Many of these imported compounds are so "intense" that it is fortunate that the American compounder is slow to introduce them to his patrons. For instance, there is the "mescal," a Mexican atrocity, which goes down (it is said) like a cactus ball. Another abomination is the "cawasha," distilled from sugar cane in Jamaica, of which a half-cent's worth is sufficient to start a feud. The "bak-no-ma-shalo" is a Philippine concoction, and the "sam" is another, both of which have knocked out more soldiers in the Philippines than can be traced to the native bolo.

The general interest in aerial navigation and particularly some of the experiments have raised the question of trespass in passing over a piece of land. For the English Blackstone defined the ownership of land to extend indefinitely down and up, and the courts of that country have decided in one case already that a balloon was a trespasser on the property it passed over, and liable for any damage resulting from the passage. Under this ruling an injunction could be obtained to prevent a flying machine of any kind from passing over private property.

From week to week as the outlook for maturing crops, as well as those which have matured, gets better and better, trade conditions improve. Indeed there is a spirit of optimism abroad which bids fair to build up business activity to the plane reached in very prosperous years. There may not be any very strenuous advance in prices, but the volume of business will increase materially. Bank clearings—always a good index by which to judge business—are 40 per cent above the figures one year ago and a little bit better than those of 1906, an active year. This establishes the fact that trade is fully up to the normal. Then, too, there is a feeling of relief that the tariff business will soon reach a conclusion. In short everything looks bright, not only for business during the fall, but during a part of the heated term.

The National treasury seems to be the only financial institution in the country at present that needs money. Hence the call of the secretary of the treasury for the balance of the government deposits in National banks. But this is not going to disturb business in any of the centers of population, for the reason that all banks are plentifully supplied with money. This fund is distributed over a wide area. No bank has enough of the money to make the call a hardship. This call will give the treasury a working balance of nearly seventy millions, and it is expected to run the government several months. If more is needed the Panama bonds will be issued, it is said, to supply working capital until the tariff bill, and President Taft's corporation tax, begin to bring in revenue. The banking institutions of the country have rarely ever been in better condition than they are now. There is an abundance of money for all legitimate purposes, and the banks have quit loaning it for questionable purposes. Wild speculation is discouraged by all well regulated banks and the result is greater confidence and sounder business methods. The country as a whole is looking up, and the general belief is that with the ending of the tariff discussion in the senate business will resume its former proportions. The country is solid.

At least one department at Washington—that of Commerce and Labor—is doing what should be done in all departments, namely to weed out dead timber in the force of employees—the deficient ones and those that loaf on their jobs. In all departments there are fellows who draw $5 a day and over in salary and don't do 15 cents worth of work. It is about time that reforms in that direction be inaugurated.

THIS AND THAT

The easier the job the harder it is to get.

When hearts are trumps a girl expects a young man to play a diamond.

The London doctor who says people ought to spend more time in the rain, has evidently had better luck with his umbrella than most of us; otherwise he would know the advice is useless.

NEIGHBORLY LOVE.

I love my neighbor as myself,
There's no mistake,
For I have loaned them when they came
With vows that they'd return the same

My garden spade,
My sickle blade;
Also my garden rake.

And unto others we are told
That we should do
As we'd be done by. That command
I have observed to beat the band,
For others hold,
If it's not sold,
My barrow new.

My lawn mower is three blocks away,
My razor hone,
My oil can and my paint brush, too.
By this—ahem—
My love for them
Is plainly shown.

The funniest thing in the world as we grow older, is a retrospective glance at the hopeless sorrows of our youth.

Beware of the truth crushed to earth; it is liable to rise up later and take a fall out of you.

One way to be happy, is to keep on working and dream about a vacation. Wonder if anyone will try and stir up a strike on account of the Rushville churches having "union" meetings.

A lot of people don't even display horse sense in running motor cars.

Many a boy passes through life without hearing a kind word until some woman starts out to capture him for a husband.

Harvey Allen at the postoffice, says the department is going to investigate "this Black Hand" business.

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

OLD CORDUROY ROAD.

(Greenfield Tribune.)

The workmen, who are putting in the storm sewer on South State street, below the old creamery, have uncovered an old corduroy road, buried under the dirt and gravel from two or three feet. Oak half-logs of large size were taken out that were in a good state of preservation, although they had been buried there for probably more than half a century.

WE THINK SO!

(Greenfield Tribune.)

Neighboring cities and towns are agitating a movement for band concerts at least one evening each week, on the public square or at some public place. Where these concerts have been and are being given the business men, all agree that they realize a financial benefit in a substantial business increase. Band concerts would be mighty fine for Greenfield and would be appreciated by every one.

TALES OF ST. PAUL.

(St. Paul Telegram.)

Morris Dilts says that Chris Reiger has a hen that has a natural taste for English sparrows and catches them and kills them. Mr. Dilts says that Mrs. Reiger is his authority and that she has seen the hen catch two sparrows. To cap the climax Mr. Dilts says he has a new potato that is large enough to eat, which grew inside an old potato in the cellar. As the new potato grew it bursted the old one and grew half out of it. As Mr. Dilts is a member of the Ananias club his word is beyond reproach.

THOSE AWFUL GAME LAWS.

(Bluffton Banner.)

The inconsistency of some parts of the game law was shown yesterday when Frank Hartman went to his home to kill a squirrel which he intended to keep for a pet. Mr. Hartman caught the squirrel and gave it to his small boy. Yesterday he came to Bluffton for the purpose of getting a cage in which to place the animal. After he had purchased the cage and was on the way home he met a neighbor who informed him that he would not be permitted to keep the squirrel after next November, as it is against the law to have a squirrel in captivity during the closed season. As a result Mr. Hartman went to his home and shot the animal. The law permitted him to murder it, but would not permit his small boy to keep it as a pet.

FREAK OF NATURE.

(Connersville Courier)

The following was sent out as a news dispatch from Rising Sun, Ind., under date of the 10th:

"After experimenting for two years, Mrs. C. Riley has at last succeeded in raising one-legged chickens.

"Several years ago rats ate a leg from each of a number of young chickens, two of which survived, a hen and a rooster. From this pair there have been hatched a nest of one-legged chickens, some with their left limb missing, some with their right.

"Mrs. Riley considers that her fortune is made, for chickens that will be unable to scratch, particularly in neighbors' gardens, will be in demand, thus preventing many exchanges of cross words over back fences."

RED CROSSES ON AUTOS.

The Present Unrest Among Women

Gertrude Atherton Says the Edict that Man Alone Shall Woo Affects the Mental and Moral Tone.

I think there is little doubt that this world-old statute that the man alone shall woo has more to do with keeping down the mental and moral tone of woman, with cultivating her ignoble talents for deceit and intrigue than any of the other forces which she finds arrayed against her, says Gertrude Atherton in the Delineator for August. It is not the softening influence of the matrimonial and maternal states that works so many miracles, but the abrupt removal of the necessity to practice a demoralizing self-control, to appear something that she is not, to still much ugly anger and resentment. I have known many girls, plentifully endowed with good looks and charm, to confess that they have "lain awake nights scheming how to get that man," only, in nine cases out of ten, to find him, later on, quite unworthy the trouble.

We are all familiar with the selfishness, the slyness, the lack of real frankness, in what might be called the Threshold Girl—anywhere between seventeen and nineteen. This is nothing worse than the mating instinct driving her blindly until she has learned to play her part with taste and tact. During that period she gropes about in her still childish brain for those qualities that will enable her to hold at least her own in the great game, and she is the more befuddled because of that curious tradition that a girl must seem other than she is.

Of course, with only this old standard of femininity, and being still fluid and plastic, the poor things more often than not model themselves upon some favorite heroine of romance, and are only knocked into shape by those indefatigable partners, Life and Time. Some of our Western girls, it is true, have a disposition to rush at a man with both arms outstretched—one sees it constantly among the second-class hordes traveling in Europe; and this, I infer, is the primitive impulse of almost primitive tribes to get what they want in the shortest possible time. But even these girls, when they are walking more thoughtfully in their twenties, when they are "young ladies," evolve a far finer set of tactics; they lose the savagery of adolescence, and cultivate those qualities which, when persisted in long enough, make them more than a match for any man.

er could you comprehend it without the experiment. And going up after night—he shook his head, "oh me, oh my, that is the worst yet."

Abe Martin Says

Abe Martin says today: "Put in a early garden an' repent at leisure. Generally speakin' farmers have had purty prosperous times durin' th' last seven years, but still after payin' fer new tires an' pianolas they hain't saved so much after all."

AMUSEMENTS

"Mr. Flip" and "The Bachelor's Wife" are the titles of the pictures to be shown at the Star-Grand theater tonight. Both are excellent comic subjects and are a scream from start to finish. In the first the smart young man gets what is coming to him, while attempting to flirt. Miss Cole will sing "My Own United States."

"An Uneven Keel" and "Cyclonic Sneezer" are the subjects to be shown at the Vaudeville tonight. The first picture is hand colored and depicts a very dramatic story. The second subject is comic and is said to be guaranteed to produce a laugh. Mrs. Blanche Wolverton will sing a new illustrated song.

The Palace theater offers an exceedingly fine program tonight and it is one that is sure to please. "The Two Donkeys" and "A Distracted May" are comic reproductions and are guaranteed laugh producers. "A Woman's Heart" is one of Pathe's beautiful hand-colored pictures and shows a story full of human interest. Taken in all, you won't spend an uninteresting or dull moment at the Palace.

CHAPTER VII.
THE BROWNES ARRIVE.

CONTRARY to all expectations, the Brownes arrived the next morning. The Deppingshams and their miserably frightened servants were scarcely out of bed when Saunders came in with the news that a steamer was standing off the shallow harbor. Bowles had telephoned up that the American claimant was on board.

The deepest gloom pervaded the household when Lady Deppingsham discovered that not one of their retinue knew how to make coffee or broil bacon—not that she cared for bacon, but that his lordship always asked for it when they did not have it.

Bromley upset the last peg of endurance by hoping that the Americans were bringing a cook and a housemaid with them.

"The Americans always travel like lords," she concluded, forgetting that she served a lord and not in the least intending to be ironical.

"That will do, Bromley," said her mistress sharply. "If they're like most Americans I've seen they'll have nothing but wet nurses and chauffeurs. I can't eat this vile stuff. Come on, Deppy. Let's go up and watch the approach of the enemy."

Scarcely half an hour passed before the advance guard of the Browne company came into view at the park gates below. Deppingsham recalled the fact that an hour and a half had been consumed in the accomplishment yesterday. He was keeping a sharp lookout for the magic red jacket and the Tommy Atkins lid. Quite secure from observation, he and his wife watched the forerunners with the hand bags; then came the sweating trunk bearers and then crated objects in—what? Yes, by the Lord Harry, in the very carts that had been their private chariots the day before!

Deppingsham's wrath did not really explode until the two were gazing open mouthed upon Robert Browne and his wife and his maidservants and his ass, for that was the name which his lordship subsequently applied, with no moderation, to the unfortunate gentleman who served as Mr. Browne's attorney. The Americans were being swiftly, cozily carried to their new home in litters of oriental comfort and elegance, fanned vigorously from both sides by eager boys. First came the Brownes, eager faced, bright eyed, alert young people, far better looking than their new enemies could conscientiously admit under the circumstances; then the lawyer from the States; then a pert young lady in a pink shirt waist and a sailor hat; then two giggling, utterly un-English maids, and all of them lolled in luxurious ease. The red jacket was conspicuously absent.

It is not to be wondered at that his lordship looked at his wife, gulped in sympathy and then said something memorable.

Almost before they could realize what had happened the newcomers were chattering in the spacious halls below, tramping about the rooms and giving orders in high, though apparently efficacious voices. Close at their heels trooped the servants, all of whom took part in the discussion incident to fresh discoveries. At last they came upon the great balcony, pausing just outside the French windows to exclaim anew in their delight. "Great!" said the lawyer man after a full minute. "Finest I've ever seen! Isn't it a picture, Browne?"

"Glorious!" said young Mr. Browne, taking a long breath. The Deppingshams, sitting unobserved, saw that he was a tall, good looking fellow. They were unconsciously amused when he suddenly reached out and took his wife's hand in his big fingers. She was very trim and cool looking in her white duck.

"What does Baedeker say about it, Bobby?" asked Mrs. Browne. Her voice was very soft and full—the quiet, well modulated Boston voice and manner.

The pert girl in the pink waist opened a small portfolio, while the others gathered around her. She read therefrom. The lawyer drew a compass from his pocket and pointed vaguely into what proved to be the southwest.

"We must tell Lady Deppingsham not to take the rooms at this end," was the next thing that the listeners heard from Mrs. Browne's lips. Her ladyship turned upon her husband with a triumphant sniff.

"What did I tell you," she whispered. "I knew they'd want the best of everything. Isn't it lucky I pounced upon these rooms? They shan't turn us out. You won't let 'em, will you, Deppy?"

"The impudence of 'em!" was all that Deppy could sputter.

At that moment the American party caught sight of the pair in the corner. For a brief space of time the two parties stared at each other, very much as the hunter and the hunted look when they come face to face without previous warning. Then a friendly, half abashed smile lighted Browne's face.

"I beg your pardon," said Browne. "This is Lord Deppingsham?"

"Ya-as," drawled Deppy, with a look which was meant to convey the impression that he did not know who the deuce he was addressing.

"Permit me to introduce myself. I am Robert Browne."

"Oh," said Deppy, as if that did not convey anything to him. Then, as an afterthought, "Glad to know you, I'm sure." Still he did not rise, nor did he extend his hand. For a moment young Browne waited, a dull red growing in his temples.

"Don't you intend to present me to Lady Deppingsham?" he demanded bluntly without taking his eyes from Deppy's face.

"Oh—er—is that neces—"

"Lady Deppingsham," interrupted Browne, "I am Robert Browne, the man you are expected to marry. We are here for the same purpose, I suspect. We can't be married to each other. That's out of the question. But we can live together as if we—"

"Good Lord!" roared Deppy, coming to his feet in a towering rage. Browne smiled apologetically and lifted his hand.

"—as if we were serving out the prescribed period of courtship set down in the will. Believe me, I am very happily married, as I hope you are. The courtship, you will perceive, is neither here nor there. Our every issue is identical, Lady Deppingsham. Doesn't it strike you that we will be very foolish if we stand alone and against each other?"

"My solicitor"—began Lady Deppingsham and then stopped. She was smiling in spite of herself.

"Your solicitor and mine can get together and talk it over," said Browne blandly. "We'll leave it to them. I am quite ready to be a friendly ally, not a foe."

"Let me understand you," began Deppingsham, cooling off suddenly. "Do you mean to say that you are not going to fight us in this matter?"

"Not at all, your lordship," said Browne coolly. "I am here to fight Taswell Skaggs and John Wyckholme, deceased. I think both of us will run no risk if we smash the will. If we don't smash it the islanders will cheerfully take the legacy off our hands."

"By Jove!" muttered Deppy, looking at his wife.

"Thank you, Mr. Browne, for being so frank with us," she said coolly. "If you don't mind, I will consult my solicitor." She bowed ever so slightly, indicating that the interview was at an end and, moreover, that it had not been of her choosing.

"Any time, your ladyship," said Browne, also bowing. "I think Mrs. Browne wants to speak to you about the rooms."

"We are quite settled, Mr. Browne, and very well satisfied," she said pointedly, turning red with a fresh touch of anger.

"I trust you have not taken the rooms at this end."

"We have. We are occupying them."

"I'm sorry," said Browne. "We were warned not to take them. They are said to be unbearable when the hot winds come in October."

"What's that?" demanded Deppingsham.

"The book of instructions and description which we have secured sets all that out," said the other. "It's strange that the servants didn't warn you."

"The—the confounded servants left us yesterday before we came, every mother's son of 'em. There isn't a servant on the place."

"What? You don't mean it? I say, Britt, come here a moment, will you? Lord Deppingsham says the servants have struck."

The American lawyer, a chubby, red faced man of forty, with clear gray eyes and a stubby mustache, whistled soulfully.

"I'll see what I can do, Mr. Browne. Got to have cooks, eh, Lord Deppingsham?" Without waiting for an answer he dashed off. The native carriers were leaving the grounds when Britt's shrill whistle brought them to a standstill. The lawyer waved a triumphant hand to his friends and then climbed into one of the litters to be borne off in the direction of the town.

"He'll have the servants back at work before 2 o'clock," said Browne calmly. Deppingsham was transfixed with astonishment.

"How—how the devil do you—does he bring 'em to time like that?" he murmured. He afterward said that if he had had Saunders there at that humiliating moment he would have kicked him.

"Good Lord!" roared Deppy in a towering rage.

"They're afraid of the American battleship," said Browne. "But where is the American battleship?" demanded Deppingsham, looking wildly to sea.

"They understand that there will be one here in a day or two if we need it," said Browne, with a sly grin. "That's the bluff we've worked." He looked around for his wife and, finding that she had gone inside, politely waved his hand to the Englishman and followed.

At 3 o'clock Britt returned with the recalcitrant servants—or at least the "pick" of them, as he termed the score he had chosen from the hundred or more. He seemed to have an Aladdin-like effect over the horde.

Calmly taking Lord Deppingsham and his following into his confidence, he said, in reply to their indignant remonstrances, later on in the day:

"I know that an American man-of-war hasn't any right to fire upon British possessions, but you just keep quiet and let well enough alone. They just simply know that I can send wireless messages and that a cruiser would be out there tomorrow if necessary, pegging away at these green hills with cannon balls so big that there wouldn't be anything left but the horizon in an hour or two. You let me do the talking. I've got 'em bluffed, and I'll keep 'em that way."

Over in the gorgeous west wing Lord Deppingsham later on tried to convince his sulky little wife that the Americans were an amazing lot, after all. Bromley tapped at the door.

"Tea is served in the hanging garden, my lady," she announced. Her mistress looked up in surprise, red eyed and a bit disheveled.

"Ask some one to bring the tea things in here, Bromley," she said sternly. "Besides, I want to give some orders. We must have system here, not Americanisms."

The tea things did not come in. In their stead came pretty Mrs. Browne.

"Won't you please join Mr. Browne and me in that dear little garden? It's so cool up there, and it must be dreadfully warm here. Really, you should move at once into Mr. Wyckholme's old apartments, across the court from ours. They are splendid. But now do come and have tea with us."

WIFE'S CALLER SHOT BANKER

Illinois Has a Sensational
Domestic Tragedy.

DOCTOR WAS NOT EXPECTED

When J. B. Saylor, Vice President of the Crescent City First National Bank, Found His Wife Unexpectedly Entertaining Dr. W. R. Miller He Upbraided the Latter, Who Shot Without Further Notice—After the Shooting Dr. Miller Went Home and Went to Bed.

Kankakee, Ill., July 13.—When J. B. Saylor, vice president of the First National bank of Crescent City, returned home and found his wife entertaining Dr. W. R. Miller he upbraided the latter, who, it is charged, drew a revolver and shot Mr. Saylor dead.

Mr. Saylor attended a ball game in the afternoon. On returning home he found Dr. Miller and Mrs. Saylor at the house. Miller proposed a card game, but Mr. Saylor became angry and referred to Miller's attentions to Mrs. Saylor, which he said had been too ardent for two years. Dr. Miller then drew an automatic revolver from a pocket and fired at Saylor, one bullet piercing the heart, one passing through the right lung, and two others taking effect in each arm.

After the shooting Dr. Miller went home and went to bed, where he was arrested later by the sheriff of Iroquois county and taken to jail.

Several days ago Dr. Miller sent his family away. Coincidentally Mrs. Saylor sent her seventeen-year-old daughter on a visit.

HE DIDN'T COME BACK

Michigan City Widow's Costly Experience With New Husband.

Michigan City, Ind., July 13.—After her fiancé had taken $1,300 from her, Mrs. Minnie Daniel, a Michigan City widow, who became acquainted with Fred Miller through matrimonial correspondence, returned from Chicago. He came here a week ago and he and Mrs. Daniel obtained a marriage license of the county clerk afterward announcing that they were married. They went to Chicago Saturday, where they were to take a Pennsylvania train for Philadelphia. Before they left the city Mrs. Daniel drew from the bank $1,300 insurance money that had fallen to her by the death of her husband, and Miller put it in a neat paper package, but, it is alleged, gave her a similar package containing nothing but worthless paper. On arriving in Chicago Miller went out, telling her he wished to look after the baggage, and that was the last she saw of him, she says.

The State Extends Mercy.

Indianapolis, July 13.—Acting upon recommendations of the state board of pardons, Governor Marshall pardoned four convicts, paroled twelve and refused clemency to seven. Leniency was shown to five men serving time for murder. Four of these were under life sentence. The murderers released from prison are Taylor Hughes, Lawrence Smith, Vincent Ginn, Andrew Korener and Fred Ellis. All are paroled.

Beveridge Welcomed Home.

Indianapolis, July 13.—A reception given at Tomlinson hall last night in honor of United States Senator Albert J. Beveridge was attended by a great crowd of cheering people. Senator Beveridge was never in better form for speechmaking. His ringing sentences on the tariff question were received with enthusiasm. Senator Beveridge perhaps never received a more enthusiastic reception.

Return to Original Demands.

Evansville, Ind., July 13.—In a meeting of their union last night the striking carmen voted unanimously to discontinue further negotiations for a settlement on any basis suggested and to return to their original demand for a "closed shop" and increased wages of 19 and 20 cents an hour.

This Little Bird Came High.

Terre Haute, Ind., July 13.—It cost W. H. Kingery $41 to kill a little red-bird. That was the amount of fine and costs when he was arraigned by a deputy game warden. It is not commonly known that redbirds may not be killed or caged and that the fine is a heavy one.

Coroner Held Her Blameless.

Logansport, Ind., July 13.—Coroner Miller of this city has exonerated from all blame Miss Helene Thomas, daughter of Ernest Thomas, banker, at Royal Center, who, Saturday, struck and killed Joseph Lonsdale while driving her automobile.

Death in a Ball Game.

French Lick, Ind., July 13.—John Chenault, catcher on the Pluto colored baseball team at this place, was struck just over the heart by a pitched ball, and died almost instantly, during a game which was being played at French Lick ball park.

EDUCATION OF THE CATHOLIC YOUTH

The Subject of a Three Days' Conference in Boston.

Boston, July 13.—The Catholic educators of the United States, after mass in the cathedral and an address of welcome by Archbishop O'Connell, began today a three days' convention in this city. The business meetings of the convention will be held in Boston college and in the Catholic Union clubhouse. The educators have been divided into three departments, the seminary, the college and the parochial schools, which include also the Catholic high schools.

Delegates from all parts of the country have assembled in Boston for the convention. One order of sisters, who conduct parochial schools, has sent nearly 200 delegates, while hundreds of priests and brothers as well as delegates among the laymen are in attendance.

GUARDIAN NOT NEEDED

Will Whittaker's Mental Condition Reported Much Improved.

Indianapolis, July 13.—Arthur E. Bradshaw, who filed a petition last Thursday asking that a temporary guardian be appointed for W. H. Whittaker, former superintendent of the Indiana reformatory, on the ground that Whittaker was of unsound mind and incapable of managing his own affairs, has notified the probate court that he wishes to withdraw the petition, saying that Whittaker had improved since the petition was filed and that there was no need for a guardian. Mr. Whittaker is improving rapidly at the sanatorium where he was taken a week ago.

Orchards Suffered Greatly.

Worthington, Ind., July 13.—A cyclonic storm struck the quiet little hamlet of Calverville, six miles north-east of this city, doing serious damage. The schoolhouse was lifted from its foundation, the store of William Stalcup was wrecked, a fine barn belonging to John J. Ballard was demolished, and serious damage was done to other buildings. The orchards suffered greatly.

Secretary Nagle Stirs Things Up In His Department.

INJECTS NEW LIFE INTO WORK

Department of Commerce and Labor
Has Just Been Subjected to the Greatest "Shake-Up" in Its History
—Investigation Showed a Low "Efficiency Record" of the Employees and Secretary Nagle Started in to Relieve His Department of Dead Timber.

Washington, July 13.—The personnel of the department of commerce and labor received the greatest "shake-up" in its history Monday when approximately 100 employees were reduced and the resignations of about ten others accepted.

This action was taken by Secretary Nagle as the result of an investigation into the "efficiency record" of the employees in his department. The reductions were made, it is stated, because the employees were found to have "loafed on the job," while those allowed to resign were found to be inefficient.

The secretary's determination to inject new life into the work of his department prompted this radical step. Further changes are to be made, it was intimated, as soon as Secretary Nagle completes his examination of the efficiency record. Many of the clerks will receive promotions.

Believing there was considerable "dead timber" in his department, Secretary Nagle about six weeks ago instituted a searching investigation. He directed the various bureau chiefs to prepare for him a bona fide report upon the efficiency record of the employees under their jurisdiction from the highest salaried clerks down to messengers. As a result of these reports it was found that about 9 or 10 per cent of the clerks were found to be deficient to a greater or lesser extent. A strange feature of the matter is that since the reports were made the efficiency record of the employees in the department has increased about 30 per cent.

LAKE STEAMERS COLLIDE

The John B. Cowle Lost With Fourteen of Her Crew.

The steel steamers John B. Cowle and Isaac M. Scott were in collision in Lake Superior, about a mile and a half off Whitefish Point lighthouse. Three minutes later the Cowle sank to the bottom in fifty fathoms of water, carrying with her fourteen members of her crew. The Scott, although badly damaged about the bows, put back to this port, where she arrived with part of the crew of the Cowle.

A heavy fog was responsible for the collision. The Scott, a new boat on her maiden trip to the head of the lakes, had just passed the light at Whitefish Point and straightened out her course up the lake, when suddenly the John B. Cowle loomed up through the fog, broadside on to the Scott and only a few feet away. The Cowle was down bound with 8,000 tons of iron ore in the hold.

The ships were so close that it was impossible to avoid a collision, and the Scott crashed into the side of the heavily laden Cowle. For fifteen feet the bow of the Scott penetrated the side of the Cowle. Tons of water rushed into the great opening, and in three minutes the Cowle had settled to the bottom of Lake Superior. Immediately after the collision a line was thrown from the deck of the Scott to the forward deck of the Cowle and several members of the crew escaped to the deck of the Scott in this manner.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE GINGLES CASE

State Deals Defense Several Telling Blows.

Chicago, July 16.—Judge Brentano's courtroom, where Miss Ella Gingles is on trial for larceny, a charge which she declares was only to cover attempts to lead her into "white slavery," was crowded with women, several of whom obtained entrance through forgery of passes.

The state dealt the Gingles defense several telling blows. The story of the Wellington hotel bathroom incident was impeached in many important features. Attempts of counsel for the defendant to bring into the case the names of well-known men as being behind the plot against the girl met with failure.

Dr. Arthur E. Price, one of the medical experts for the state, gave testimony tending to support the theory that the girl is suffering from a form of hysteria. Dr. Price saw the girl at the hospital after she was found injured in the bathroom.

HEAVY WIND STORM DAMAGED THE CROPS

Corn Was Beat to the Ground by Driving Wind and Rain—Stalk is Very Tender.

WHEAT IS IN BAD CONDITION

The severe wind storm which passed over the county yesterday afternoon did more damage to the crops than any other one storm this season. What small acreage of wheat remained uncut was beat to the ground and practically ruined. The recent rains have injured to a certain extent the wheat in the shock. The oats, which is yet uncut, was blown and beat to the ground and in many sections severely injured. Probably more damage was done to the corn crop by the driving rain and wind. Whole fields were blown to the ground, the ground being so soft and the stalk so tender that it was unable to withstand the test. Much of the corn will raise again with dry weather and a hot sun.

All of the other companies wanted exorbitant prices. Nothing was done, but a high class attraction will be secured in a few days. A local company of artists will put on a feature vaudeville show.

and to emit stinging and foul-mouthed words of contempt. It is part of their lives to attack everything, to disapprove, disparage, find fault with, protest against, to frown upon, to depreciate, decry, defame, lampoon, to censure, stigmatize, load with reproaches, cry down, to excite disapprobation, scandalize and castigate. Just think of them doing all of that—and yet some are called Christians, men who follow in the steps of the Maker and in some instances are held up to the rising generations as shining lights to emulate.

At heart they may be all right. Let us be lenient with them and cry out "Forgive them for they know not what they do." If they could only be reached by an educational campaign or a system of schooling by mail. If they could be taught to know that two counties removed from here no one knows they are alive then they might lose some of their pompousness and conclude that maybe the universe could twist around without their opinion or aid. Every community has a few of them, but we seem to be thrice blest with them. May they live long and prosper is the prayer of—
